

About TAL

Tomorrow Advancing Life (NYSE: TAL) is a leading education and technology enterprise in China, which holds close the core development goals of being technology driven, talent-centered, and quality focused. Since its establishment, TAL has been committed to integrating the internet and technology into education to deliver a better study experience for children.

TAL's mission is to advance education through science and technology. TAL continuously makes efforts to integrate technology with education, promotes innovation, and leads development within the Industry. TAL provides quality products and services, creates value for customers, and brings long-term returns for shareholders. TAL's vision is to become a reputable education institution.

TAL continuously attracts excellent talents into the education industry, creates an equal, respecting, open, and sharing work environment and allows employees to work happily while developing their skills. TAL, which enjoys great popularity among students, has covered fifty-five cities in mainland China.

And it's market value is 14.7 billion USD.